Overview

The Department of Art History offers a major and minor in Art History. Art History is the study of works of art and other visual artifacts from all regions of the world and all periods of history. Consequently, the undergraduate curriculum in Art History, with its global perspective, is one of the most diverse disciplines in the humanities. Through Art History, students learn how to describe and interpret a range of objects including sculpture, painting, photography, architecture, and "new media" such as video and performance art. These skills, along with the program’s intense focus on writing and verbal expression, prepare students to think critically and to express themselves clearly at a time when visual communication is becoming ever more important.

Because works of art are always created within a larger cultural context, Art History courses are a good way to understand what other places or times were like. Students may explore, for example, ancient Greece, 19th century Japan, or even the 21st century United States. Majors in Art History are encouraged to take related courses in other fields in the humanities and to pursue the study of language beyond the minimum requirements. Because of its international perspective, Art History is a particularly good major for students interested in studying abroad. There are many study centers throughout the world associated with the University’s Education Abroad Program that offer widely varied selections of Art History courses.

Art History offers a unique one-year Master's Program in which all current UCI undergraduate students can build upon their undergraduate work to complete an M.A. in Art History in one additional year beyond the completion of the Bachelor’s degree. The M.A. program in Art History is designed to provide students with advanced skills and broad knowledge in the discipline of art history. See the graduate section (http://catalogue.uci.edu/schoolofhumanities/departmentofarthistory/#graduatetext) for detailed information.

Career Opportunities

Following their graduation, students with a B.A. in Art History have found employment in art galleries, auction houses, and museums, and they have entered graduate programs with a view to careers in university teaching, curatorial work, and art conservation. Moreover, with its strong emphasis on developing critical skills in writing, speaking, and analysis, Art History also provides an excellent preparation for many other careers. UCI graduates have pursued professional paths ranging from medicine and law, to business and education, to information technologies and architecture. As in the case of arts administration or intellectual property law, some of these professional pursuits have depended on and continue to make use of training in the arts.

4+1 M.A. Program in Art History

The 4+1 program allows students to earn a bachelor’s degree while simultaneously completing courses that can be applied toward a master’s degree in Art History. This unique structure permits students to complete coursework for their master’s degree during the undergraduate term and one additional year. This is a 4+1 M.A. Program for UCI undergraduates majoring in Art History or other majors.

The M.A. program in Art History is designed to provide students with advanced skills and broad knowledge in the discipline of art history. The faculty is particularly well equipped to guide students with special interests in American, Asian, and European art history.

Requirements

Students can begin coursework during the last year of the B.A. and are required to take a total of nine courses, equivalent to 36 units, toward the M.A. Nine courses are required for the degree: two Art History Masters Seminars (ART HIS 298), Art History: Theory and Methods (VIS STD 290A), three Graduate Seminars in Visual Studies taught by Art History faculty (VIS STD 295), an additional elective graduate seminar; and two quarters of Master’s Thesis Research (ART HIS 299).

The Master’s Thesis is an approximately 20-page work of independent research supervised by a member of the faculty. Students wishing to participate in the program should apply either in their final undergraduate year or in the spring quarter of their penultimate year, which would allow them to begin course work toward the M.A. in their last undergraduate year.
