

Gender and Sexuality Studies, Minor

The Department offers a minor in Gender & Sexuality Studies which examines the complex articulations of gender and sexuality with systems that differentiate races, ethnicities, socio-economic classes, religions, and nationalities. Students examine how the authority of sciences, technologies, images, narratives, laws, and religions have been formative in producing prevailing ideas about gender and sexuality. Our teaching and research agendas reflect a commitment to refining three key methods: 1) Feminist Transnational Analysis; 2) Critical Interdisciplinarity; 3) Cultural Theory.
